AIA Kentucky 2010 Allied Member Program

Allied Membership in AIA Kentucky (the Kentucky Society of Architects) is available to all interested allied design professionals, construction industry representatives, and product and service suppliers.

Three Allied Membership categories have been carefully designed to allow both individuals and companies to participate in and support the many programs and activities of the Society which take place throughout the year. As an Allied Member, you will be automatically eligible for certain events and programs - all you need do is confirm your participation when requested. You will enjoy the rewards of membership from now through the end of 2010, and each year you may renew your membership at the same level or a different level - whichever you prefer.

The breakdown on the following page shows the three levels of Allied Membership in AIA Kentucky - Friend, Sponsor and Benefactor. As you will see, each category provides increasingly more benefits. Keep in mind that the member services and sponsorship opportunities you'll receive will cost you more if you sign up individually as they arise throughout the year. We hope you'll select the level that you and your company feels is most appropriate for your needs.

Why is membership important? We think the benefits are obvious - for both you and AIA Kentucky. Your membership shows your commitment to our organization, and we only have to ask for your support once each year. You will be provided with various opportunities to promote your company and your products or services to architect members throughout the state, and we will take pride in having a broader base of support from throughout the design and construction industry. We are committed to giving you exclusive opportunities for access to and interaction with our professional members.

We hope this approach will assist you in preparing your marketing budget each year, and we also believe this is a tremendous way to involve you more significantly and consistently in our organization on a long-term basis. All of us in the building industry stress the importance of teamwork as we go about our daily business. We hope this program will strengthen our relationships and result in increased interaction and success for us all.

Please accept our invitation to membership in AIA Kentucky.

Alvin J. Cox, AIA
2010 President

Richard Polk, AIA
2010 President-Elect

About the AIA in Kentucky

AIA Kentucky - Also known as the Kentucky Society of Architects, AIA Kentucky is a non-profit professional association representing the interests of and providing services to over 575 Kentucky architects and affiliated design professionals. The Society's programs and activities have a statewide focus. Services include: monitoring legislative issues and government regulations; professional liability insurance programs; health, life and other employee benefit programs; professional development and educational seminars; design assistance teams to further community planning and development; the annual convention and trade fair; social and recreational events; design awards programs; and support of the University of Kentucky College of Design.

In addition to the state organization, three independently-governed AIA chapters, operated by volunteer boards and committees, provide localized programs and services to the memberships and the communities they serve:

AIA Central Kentucky Chapter - based in Louisville, includes all areas west of (but not including) the city of Frankfort, as well as all of Western Kentucky. Approximately 288 members.

AIA East Kentucky Chapter - based in Lexington, includes Frankfort and most points in south central, northeastern and southeastern Kentucky. Approximately 244 members.

AIA Northern Kentucky Chapter - includes the counties of Boone, Campbell, Carroll, Gallatin, Grant, Kenton, Owen and Pendleton. Approximately 45 members.

AIA Kentucky and the local AIA chapters are dedicated to:

- uniting in fellowship the architects of Kentucky and combining their efforts to promote the aesthetic, scientific and practical efficiency of the profession;
- advancing the science and art of planning and building by advancing the standard of architectural education, training and practice.
- coordinating the building industry and profession of architecture to ensure the advancement of the living standards of our people through their improved environment; and
- making the profession of ever-increasing service to society.
